SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE JARDINE

MASS PRODUCTIONS URGED AS REMEDY FOR FARMERS

Farmers Should Work Closer Together In Their Farming and When Harvest Is Over Should Combine Crops In Various Sections For Mass Marketing--Government Is Willing To Help and Ready To Assist In Sales of Produce.

W. W. Jardine, secretary of agriculture, speaking to the farmers at Ohio State university Tuesday, said, in part:

"Collective production and mass marketing in agriculture should be carried on in a manner similar to that adopted by all large industries, and when this is accomplished the farmer can show profits that are now losses.

"This should not be construed to mean that any effort is being made to revolutionize agricultural interests, but rather as a step forward in its behalf similar to that taken more than half a century ago in behalf of industrial business, when small concerns combined their efforts with a single objective—a greater and better output to meet the ever growing demand.

"Mass marketing in the various industries must be given much of the credit for making America what it is today industrially. Why not eliminate the excess overhead expense that is suffered by individual farmers, thereby keeping their profits down to a minimum?

"It has long been the practice in agriculture for a farmer to carry on his own work, and after harvest season to dispose of his products as best he can. Sometimes he is paid according to the value of his produce, but more often he receives much less, and thereby is forced to suffer a loss, rather than allow it to go to waste.

"Now, the thought that I am endeavoring to drive home is this—that farmers work closer together in their planting and that when the harvest season is over that they combine their crops in the various sections in cooperative mass marketing.

"This is not a radical diversion, but rather merely injecting a uniformity in agriculture after years of groping blindly about in the dark. Bring farmers together, unite them as one, with a single purchasing and selling head in each section, and then something can be accomplished.

"My idea is merely to have the farmers in the various districts combine their efforts toward mass marketing, for what might be good for a farmer in one section might not be good for one in another district. Neither do I want to have the farm lose its individualism. I would far rather see a farm as it is today, with its farm house, barns, trees, shrubs, flowers and family, than a vacant tract of land sown in some grain, and governed by a large corporation.

"Under the present plan of marketing there are so many individual farmers on the market that they are in one another's way, and ordinarily their crops are so limited that they do not have the power to 'bargain' with purchasers. As a result the only avenue of escape is for the farmers to combine their efforts.

"If they will work collectively, they can derive a maximum from their products, and I believe that toward this end the government can lend a helping hand.

"It has been only during the past two years that the government has been willing to help the farmer, but now it is dynamically behind him and ready to assist in the sale of his produce.

"In carrying out such a program, is there any plausible reason why the farmer should not be granted the same credit for the building of grain elevators that is afforded other business enterprises? But, when this is done—let the farmer do it. It is his enterprise and should be governed by him—and him alone.

"I also believe in a high tariff—and a basis that home market products should be sold to Americans. Why not give America the benefit of its own products? Put a high tariff on all exports and then America can purchase her own produce and not be forced to pay excessive prices for imported products."

NEW TIME WINS

In House, No Doubt of Its Passage by the Senate When It Gets Bill.

Eastern standard time as the official time for the entire state was almost unanimously indorsed Tuesday in the house of representatives by its passage of the bill by Representative Abel, of Cleveland, making such provision. Only three negative votes were cast against the measure. It received 115 affirmative votes.

Representative John M. Hodson, Democrat, of Williams county, was the only member to speak in opposition of the bill. He contended Eastern time in a city product and farmers particularly in the northwest, are opposed to it. A number of farmer members supported the bill which now goes to the senate for action.

The house also passed a bill exempting dentists, registered pharmacists and newspaper representatives from jury duty. It also goes to the senate for consideration.

HUSH MONEY DEALS TOLD BY BOOTLEGGER

How $2,000,000 Liquor Cargo Landed, Explained by Confessed Rum Runner.

Cecil N. Kinder, New York, confessed rum runner, related in federal court Tuesday his version of the landing of the $2,000,000 rum cargo of the schooner Eker.

Facing Henry Wissel, mayor of Edgewater, New Jersey, and 18 other defendants, all charged with conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws Kinder testified to distribution of hush money to two police officers and a customs inspector.

Kinder, however, said he had not seen Mayor Wissel, or paid him money. Wissel is alleged to have accepted a $22,500 bribe for permitting the Eker's rum cargo to be landed at Edgewater.

Kinder, one of the three owners of the Eker, plead guilty Tuesday.

Sergeant John J. Lowery of the New York marine police, Kinder said, came to his home in New York while the Eker was lying at dock at the Smith shipyard in Edgewater in April 1926. Lowery, Kinder said, demanded $40,000 "for the police boat." Kinder said he finally paid Lowery $20,000.

James A. Dinan, Edgewater's chief of police, and Alexander F. Flannery and Edward Pickering, Edgewater detectives, Kinder said, "saw" him about the Eker's cargo.

Kinder said they asked $3 a case for permitting the cargo to be unloaded. He conversed with them about the matter in the Edgewater police station and then went to the Smith shipyard. Kinder testified he saw Dinan later and paid him $8500.

Edward A. Ritz, a federal customs inspector at Union City, New Jersey he said, demanded money. Kinder said he gave him $500.

Kinder said he chartered from Harry Gertner, one of the defendants, the "Tillie." It was to be used in rum running from the Bahamas, whence the Eker brought her cargo. A charter price of $10,000 was paid Gertner Kinder said.

The "Tillie" was seized off the Bahamas, Kinder related, and he flew there by airplane from Miami, Florida. He said he found the Eker and the "Tillie" lying together near an island off the Bahamas with the cargo of the "Tillie" being transferred to the Eker.

An hour of severe cross examination by Steuer failed to confuse Kinder in his testimony.

Bloused Waist Is Favored in Paris

Wide, Fitted Belt, Straight Skirt Are in Fashion This Season.

Midseason collections of fashions just now being shown in Paris confirm, in one way at least, the assertion repeatedly made by the French designers, that styles develop logically from what has gone before and that they themselves are powerless to change that trend. The already familiar bloused waist, bloused behind, notes a Paris fashion correspondent in the New York Times, proves the truth of this contention by becoming the waist bloused all around, the most significant note, perhaps, of the new exhibitions.

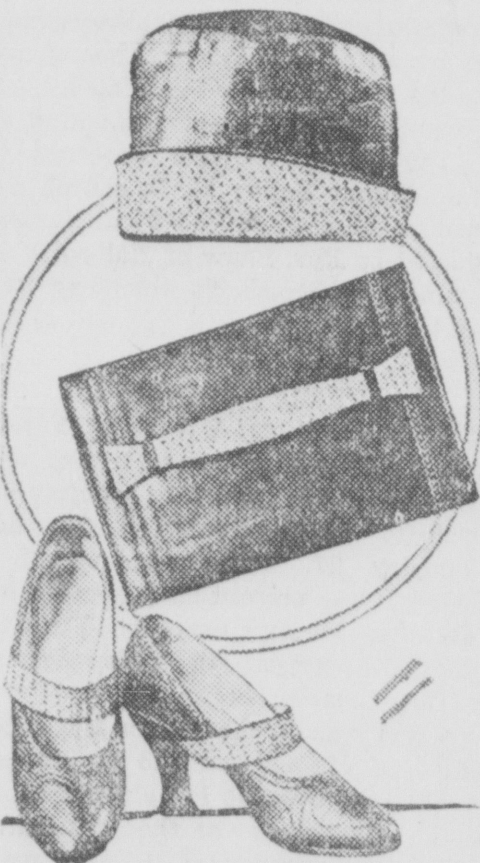

To avoid an effect of heaviness with this bloused waist, the skirts of the new gowns have become much less elaborate and straighter in line than they have been for some time. They are quite often entirely plain, wrapped about the figure with an overlapping flap at the side, either front or back, much as the remembered sheath skirt was. Where elaboration is required, the skirt is shown in straight tiers, a circular fullness inserted at either side of the front, or else it is made with a tight underskirt with the fuller overskirt split into four or more panels. Between this waist, bloused all around, and the straight-line skirt, is generally a belt about four inches in width, half above and half crossing the hip. It is fitted smoothly at all times and often set into the gown itself, affording a most pleasing effect.

The long-fitted sleeve extending over the hand in a pointed or curved outline is chosen most frequently to accompany this new silhouette, though the choice is not limited to the one style. Perhaps the type second in favor is the bell sleeve with a little puffed undersleeve of lace or contrasting material.

For afternoon gowns soft satin in both black and colors, its sheen not too high, is taking the place in the spotlight lately held by crepe de chine. Anna shows a charming black and white study in a supple black satin that incorporates many of the new ideas sponsored for the midseason. The waist of this gown is, of course, bloused moderately all around, but the skirt, while preserving its close straight outline, is given elegance by a flat cut-out flounce that begins as a narrow panel on the left hip attached under a double row of small white buttons, swings around the front of the skirt as an applied eight-inch border and comes up the right side where it forms a short but bouffant side drapery. Black and white striped ribbon, two inches in width, faces the straight collar that can be worn wrapped about the neck, made with the aid of the double row of white buttons. There is a chic cuff about the long-fitted sleeves; and attention is further drawn to the wide-swathed belt. The front of the waist along each side of the collar opening has its double row of glistening white buttons also.

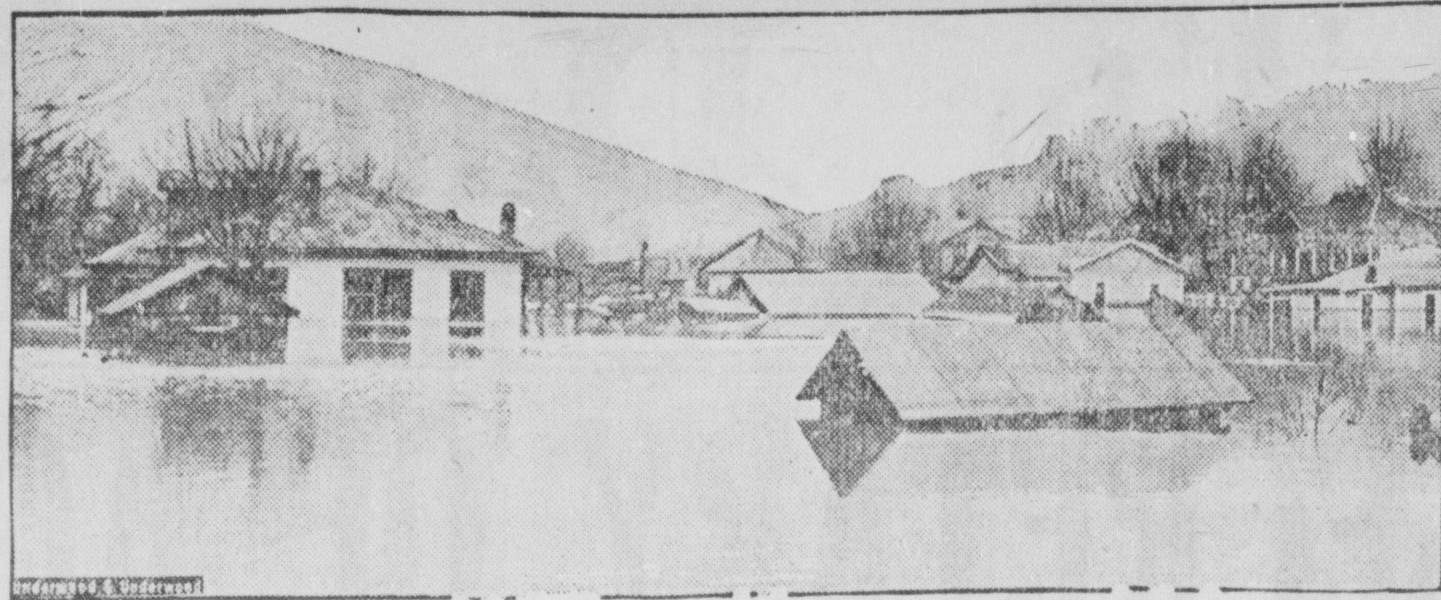

Plaids are a notable feature of these new collections, used both as trimmings and as whole garments. Drecoll lines a smart coat of navy blue crepe-la, bound with black braid, with a plaid silk softer than taffeta in tones of green, yellow and red. The collar of this coat, faced in the plaid, is cut like the collar of a motor coat and could be worn fastened snugly about the neck with a buttoned flap to hold it in place. The fronts of the coat are faced with plaid and turned back to form full length lapels. With this is worn a dress of navy crepe-la, piped in red, with collar and cuffs of the plaid.

Shoes, Hat and Bag to Match, Latest Sensation

Stylists continue to talk in terms of the ensemble. Shoes, hat and bag to match is the mode's proud achievement this season, in the way of relating the costume even into the slightest detail. These new exquisitely fine kidskin sets are just about as handsome as the mind can conceive. The ultra-smart set in the picture is made of ebony kidskin—the new name Paris has given to black. This naive hat of the ebony kidskin has a turnback of gray snakeskin. Both purse and shoes are strapped with snakeskin identical to that used for the facing of the hat.

LATEST BUICK MODEL

AMONG the new models which attracted the crowds at the New York automobile show last week was a new body type introduced by Buick. This model is called the Town Brougham, and is a deluxe five passenger closed car on the Series 115 chassis.

The body is of the sedan type, with the rounded, leather covered rear quarters and the landau hinges of the brougham. It is distinctly in the deluxe class, carrying special equipment, upholstery and finish. The color on the upper works of the body is Delaware green, with Yorktown green below the belt. The leather rear quarters are colored. Double gold striping is placed over the black lower molding. The wheels are dark natural wood. The upholstery is a shade of green to harmonize with the body colors.

A very pleasing effect has been obtained by skillful application of colors. While the entire upper part of the body is in Delaware green, the insets around the windows are in the lighter Yorktown green. This treatment gives an effect of color harmony hitherto associated only with the most expensive custom-built cars.

The Series 115 chassis has a wheelbase of 114½ inches and is powered with the Buick valve-in-head engine of 207 cubic inches displacement, developing 63 horsepower. The speed is rated at 70 miles an hour. The chassis is equipped with the new vacuum ventilator which holds crankcase dilution to such close limits that only four changes of oil a year are necessary, provided the level in the crankcase is kept up. Gasoline mileage between 17 and 19 miles to the gallon.

The Town Brougham is a companion model to the Series 115 Country Club coupe, and carries the same equipment. This includes a smoking set and vanity, high quality carpeting in the rear compartment, artistically designed hardware, indirectly lighted instrument panel, and the new Buick radiator emblem.

BILL INTRODUCED

In Ohio House of Representatives

To Make Eastern Time Official Standard Time In Ohio—Other Bills.

By Jack Scott, United Press Staff Correspondent.

Columbus, Feb. 1.—February found the 87th General Assembly deep in the grind of the legislative session. After a month made up largely of bill introduction, the first day of February revealed 3 bills and a joint resolution on the calendar before the House for passage today.

One measure, the first bill up for consideration, would make Eastern Time the official time throughout the State.

The second bill would authorize common pleas judges to select a successor to the chief justice, when a vacancy occurs.

Newspaper employees would be exempt from jury service in the third bill.

The resolution proposes the creation of joint legislative committee to investigate state departments and governmental expenditures.

While the lower house today prepared to take action on these four measures, it also has a number of new bills added to its total, as has the Senate, as a result of last night's activity.

Both chambers began the week and ended the month by introducing bills.

One would permit use of gasoline tax funds on new construction and thereby would destroy all arguments in favor of increasing the gasoline tax.

A bill to increase the penalty for arson was introduced.

The senate also passed a bill last night authorizing cities to pay expenses of members of the Ohio Conference of Municipalities.

In the lower house, quite a few new bills have been added to the list.

Highway robbers and bandits using firearms or other death-dealing instruments in committing holdups would receive the penalty of life imprisonment.

One would increase the fee of coroners from $3 to $5 for "viewing" bodies.

Golf also had a winter inning in a bill which would authorize cities to secure land for public golf courses by condemnation proceedings.

Drastic powers to fight the corn borer menace, would be given the state department of agriculture under provisions of a bill. Representatives of the agriculture department would be authorized to destroy infected crops, either in fields or storage, and to assess the cost of such work against the owner of the crop. They would also have unrestricted right of search of vehicles and houses to aid in stamping out the pest.

One would require the Public Utilities Commission to deduct the depreciation reserves of a utilities corporation as well as the actual depreciation of its properties in fixing the reproduction values for rate making purposes under a bill introduced.

The state director of highways would be authorized to designate the principal highways of the state as "main thoroughfares" on which traffic would have the right-of-way over vehicles entering from intersecting roads.

BOY QUALIFIES

AS DETECTIVE

Cleveland, Jan. 31.—Because of a pair of ripped pants, Eugene Lampinan, 7 years old, is Cleveland's youngest detective.

While his mother was mending the trousers, Eugene spent the time looking out of the window. He saw the window of a grocery store across the street suddenly shattered to bits as a holdup man ran through the door for a car parked at the curb. Eugene hastily donned his mended apparel and ran into the street, where the robber and his companion had trouble in starting their car. The boy was able to get the license number as the car pulled away, and gave it to the grocer.

Police looked up the license number and arrested Ralph Cole, aged 24, and Earl Dunbar. The two confessed, police said.

MILITARY

Control of Germany Ceased Its Existence.

Berlin, Feb. 1.—(UP).—The Inter-Allied Commission for the military control of Germany ceased to exist yesterday as a result of the series of conferences, beginning with Locarno, for the resurrection of friendliness and the guarantee of peace in Europe.

The removal was accomplished without fife or drums or German tears. The Nationalists in Germany for years characterized the organization, created to oversee German's compliance with the Versailles treaty disarmament, as "a sniffing commission entrusted with military espionage."

Chancellor Wilhelm Marx' new cabinet met for the first time yesterday and approved the agreement reached at Paris with respect to German disarmament and the regulation of the problem of German fortifications on the eastern frontier.

Termination of allied control of German disarmament awaited only their approval. The League of Nations will take over the responsibilities hitherto borne by the commission.

A DANGEROUS

DECISION

Whatever may be the final action of the Senate, it has taken a momentous step in refusing to honor the credentials of Frank L. Smith. For the time being Illinois is deprived of a vote in the Senate, although it has sent here a man who bears valid credentials. If the nation were on the verge of war, and a single vote in the Senate could decide the issue, it is easy to conceive that the Senate's action would arouse the bitterest passions and lead to unfortunate results. A prompt report from the committee, and prompt action by the Senate on that report, may relegate to a minor place the question of denying the oath to an appointee bearing valid credentials; but it is unquestionably a dangerous precedent, and one which the Senate was not required to establish. It could have dealt with Smith on the merits of the charges against him, without temporarily denying to the state of Illinois its equal representation in the Senate.—Washington Post.

FARMERS WEEK
STATE COLLEGE
EDUCATIONAL*Closes Friday Night — Insect Pests are Under Discussion.

Insect pests which each year cost the Ohio farmer many thousands of dollars were the subject of several discussions at Farmers' week this year. Leading the list in interest was the discussion by farmers, entomologists and engineers, of the European corn borer problem.

They summarized the problem about like this: The European corn borer has now increased so greatly in lake shore counties in Ohio that serious losses can come to corn in five counties near the west end of Lake Erie this year.

The borer increased 500 per cent last year and in some fields of Lucas county every stalk is now infested.

Northern Ohio counties are now organizing to fight the insect. To be successful, the discussion agreed, the Ohio farmer must change his method of crop disposal to make his fields unhealthy for the borer. The effectiveness of stalk and stubble destruction before June 1, will probably determine the extent of damage next year.

An insect pest new to Ohio, the Oriental peach moth, was described for Farmers' week visitors and members of the Ohio State Horticultural society by Louis A. Stearns.

This peach moth, a native of Japan is supposed to have been introduced into the United States in 1913, spreading rapidly in the eastern coast states and reaching Ohio last year. It feeds on peaches, quinces and apples. In late varieties of peaches, the moth has been known to cause worminess in 90 per cent of the crop.

Three measures are necessary to control this pest, according to Mr. Stearns. The first is, fall application of paradichloro benzene, as for the peach-tree borer; the second, plowing, disking and cultivating the orchard in April, so killing the larvae wintering over on the ground; third, use of special sprays in nicotine at stated intervals during the growing season.

Fruit growers at Farmers' week also heard F. H. Ballou of the Ohio agricultural experiment station, of Wooster, summarize five years of spraying experiments conducted at Wooster. He also emphasized the value of dilute sprays, thoroly applied. Lime-sulfur is superior to bordeaux mixture in the apple orchard, he said, and dry lime-sulfur is fully as effective as the commercial lime-sulfur and safer to use in unfavorable weather. Combination of dry lime-sulfur and hydrated lime Mr. Ballou concluded, has proven one of the most satisfactory sprays ever tried for the prevention of apple scab.

Dr. Slate, talking on "Better Silage for the Dairy Farmer," cited Connecticut trials which proved that one acre of a late maturing corn is equivalent, as silage to 1.1 acres of medium maturing corn or 1.2 acres of early maturing corn. Dr. Morrison, after discussing recent discoveries in dairy feeding, said all these experiments indicated conclusively the high value of legume hay for stock feeding, and the great importance of dairy products in the human diet.

Farmers' week was not given over wholly to addresses. Movies and demonstrations were scheduled every noon and afternoon, old-fashioned dancing and a clog dancers' contest came immediately after supper each evening and more formal entertainment took place later in the evening. The university orchestra, students of the college of agriculture, artists provided by radio station WEAQ, and two Ohio local granges provided the additional entertainment.

STORES ENTEREDNational 5 and 10 Cent Store and Wittichs Confection-ary Entered.

The National 5 & 10c store and Wittich's confectionery store were entered by burglars Tuesday night. In the former place $9 in nickles and dimes from nine different registers was taken. In Wittich's $3.75 was taken from the cash register. In both places the night marauders entered the stores by breaking back windows. This is the second time this week burglars have entered stores and helped themselves to money left in registers.

THE WOMEN'S BUSINESS AND
PROFESSIONAL*Club is Given an Interesting
Talk on Commercial Work.

Many a person in business or profession has convinced himself that his job is just about the hardest job there is, and we have no doubt but that some such idea found its way into the mind of Professor Gail Watt of the commercial department of our high school when he accepted an invitation to speak before the Business and Professional Women's club at their regular meeting which was held in the club room Tuesday evening.

However, Mr. Watt is not what was known some years ago as bashful, and after explaining his various duties in our schools he also told his audience which was comprised of many unmarried ladies, that he was his own boss, that is he said he was not married. After this brief preface he proceeded to give them some interesting data on commercial training.

The most important work of the school according to Mr. Watt, is to give to the people the training that will best fit them for the places they are to occupy in the future. Rapid strides have been made in commercial education in the past few years, while this branch has always been recognized as important, it is just newly recognized in our schools.

Many consider business education as inferior to that along other lines of endeavor, and is designed only for those of inferior intelligence. But when we consider a very large percent of our contracts are due to business relations we must recognize the value of commercial training.

By all means boys and girls who expect to enter the business world after leaving high school should take work in the commercial department.

At the conclusion of Mr. Watt's talk Mrs. Morris introduced Misses Berneda Whetstone, deputy recorder of Ross county; Lelia Souers, of the auditor's office Ross county and Frances Andre, assistant to Dr. Kay, of Chillicothe, all of whom were interested in the organizing of a Business and Professional Women's club in that city.

Miss Nellie Anderson then read a very interesting paper on "The Purpose and Advantages of a Business and Professional Women's Club."

The real purpose of the club, Miss Anderson told the visitors is to promote the interests of business and professional women and to bring the members into relations of mutual helpfulness.

A chorus composed of members of the club then sang two selections accompanied by Mrs. R. P. Heiskell, who also was responsible for the training and presentation of the chorus.

Mrs. Morris then reminded the members that the card party which had been arranged at the last meeting would be held on Thursday evening, February 17, at the home of Mrs. H. G. Stevenson, West Main street, and that all desiring reservations would please call either Miss Rowe or Mrs. Morris at the recorder's office, phone 61 during the day or at their homes during the evening. Lunch was served by the committee.

The next meeting will be held in the club rooms February 15 and will be a dinner meeting. The guests for the evening will be Miss Jean Cavers, of the Columbus School for Girls, state president of the club and Miss Ethel Wise, president of the Columbus club.

TANGIER NOTED AS CITY OF INTRIGUE

Everyone in Tangier, Morocco, is either a spy of some government or interest concerned in Moroccan affairs or is being spied upon. Probably the majority of the spies are volunteers, enthusiastic amateurs who get a great thrill out of sinking and whispering about. They give a certain comic opera air to the place. If one goes to Tangier for anything other than the ordinary tourist visit, the chances are he will acquire a private spy of his own, assigned to follow him about and report his actions and intentions to the French or Spanish authorities. With all its amusing features, the spy industry of Tangier has some excuse for being. While Abd El Krim was still a power, it was at the tables of the Cafe Central that many of the deals for the shipment of contraband arms were made. Because of its position on the strait of Gibraltar, within sight of the European shore, the city always has been a place of intrigue.—New York Times.

Etiquette Constant Problem

Proper manners are set by the leaders of every age in history, and yet "high society" is hardly less guilty than the lower social orders at times. The situation became so bad during the reign of Louis XIV in France, who had poor eating manners, that books of instruction were issued then as now. At one time the fork was held "indecent."

PICKAWAY SCHOOL NOTES.

Pickaway township centralized schools completed the final photographic work for the school annual which will be published near the close of the school term. This annual embraces all departments of the school and is the first of the kind published at Pickaway. The school is anticipating the loyal support of all patrons of the district in putting across this worthy undertaking.

Bad roads have offered a stiff proposition to our truck drivers during the past two weeks. It is the hope and prayer that the county officials may waken up to the fact that the Kingston pike is actually impassable.

Pickaway high took two games out of three to the Williamsport squad last Friday evening. The second team directed by Mr. Cameron winning over Williamsport's second team by a score of 14 to 11. Babb was the principal point getter for Pickaway with Enoch and Rhoads following. Pickaway's first team defeated Williamsport by a score of 22 to 7. Pickaway girls were defeated by Williamsport by the score of 22 to 14.

Pickaway cagers meet Ashville next Friday night at Ashville.

Eleanor Vandervoort and Rosa Jackson two pupils of the fourth grade at Pickaway won first and second honors in the poster contest at the Circleville Farmers' Institutes. Their posters will now be entered in the state contest. Miss Reichelderfer, the teacher of these pupils feels very proud of the fact that two of her pupils won this honor.

The Junior class are planning a box social and other amusements for Monday evening, February 14.

One hundred and sixty-seven pupils were given the Schick test by Dr. Heffner and Miss Kuhlman, the county health nurse.

Another Kind of Chaw, Sir

One of our English literature professors, whose name we must in all kindness withhold, was negotiating for some time with a ladies' literary club in Maine, about a lecture on Chaucer, on whom he was a distinguished authority. They finally wrote, "We have decided to have a baked-bean supper instead."—The Harvard Lampoon.

Worry Stupid Waste

Worry is evidence of an ill-controlled brain; it is merely a stupid waste of time in unpleasantness, says Arnold Bennett. If men and women practiced mental callisthenics as they do physical callisthenics they would purge their brains of this foolishness.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE HAS FINE MEETING
Tuesday Evening, Addressed by Geo. Chandler State Secretary.

The pleasure of hearing a man talk on the business interests of the country was given the members of the chamber of commerce Tuesday evening by George Chandler, secretary of the state chamber of commerce.
Mr. Chandler is an expert in his line. His wide acquaintance with business affairs of the world at large, made his talk interesting and the members who failed to hear him missed a treat.
The chamber of commerce is international in scope, said the speaker. The state chamber of commerce is now 33 years old. This state is the second leading state in the Union in chamber of commerce membership. Massachusetts is the leader. The body is now affiliated with the national chamber of commerce and your association here, being a member of the state association has access to anything put thru by the national body.
The Dawes reparation now functioning in Germany was practically put across by the national body. It is the best economic system ever devised; the budget system of the federal government, was also a child of the national chamber of commerce and it is responsible for the reduction of our huge national debt.
Your own state has a problem on its hands, it carries an annual deficit of nine million dollars, something is wrong. It needs a combing over; too much money is being wasted. It needs a budget system badly. We are to extravagant with public money, we have no business head, and we need one. The state has too many departments, too many officers and clerks to pay. There is a saturnalia of expense, and it will have to be curbed before long. We are spending thirty million dollars on highways and something is wrong with this expenditure. We are not getting anywhere. What is needed is a man who has scientific experience in road building, not a politician to hold down the job.
Your state has rich coal fields, but they are not worked. You are getting your coal from a sister state, West Virginia. Why? because under open shop, miners are working for fifty cents less. The differential has practically closed the mining industry in your state.
The steel industries, which are the paramount industries in this state, are slipping, the steel industry is hunting other territory, it's leaving Ohio. Why? because your tax is too high, and they are going to other states like West Virginia, Pennsylvania, Kentucky and Indiana where they are not taxed to death. What will become of the steel industries in Ohio is easily answered. The millions that are now being invested in other states, installing the latest inventions and machinery in their plants will gradually turn out iron products so much cheaper than the old antique system now in use by the present steel mills. The latter will not be able to compete and they will force them to shut down. It is an inevitable law, the survival of the fittest; it's a sorry picture, but it's a true one. Something is wrong with your tax commission; it needs a cleaning, a renovation; bring down your tax rate and retain your industries.

Fish Travel Far to Escape From Storms
That fish are capable of swimming hundreds of miles seeking refuge from storms has been proved in the waters of St. Andrew's bay, at Panama City, Fla., according to a dispatch from that place. Some of the local fishermen returned with an enormous catch of a kind of mullet that is never seen in these waters. Its habitat is the gulf of Mexico off the southernmost shores of the West coast, a distance of 300 or 400 miles. Large schools of various kinds of fish foreign to this district have been seen in the gulf outside the city in the last few days swimming in this direction, in an apparently exhausted condition. Another interesting occurrence, but one which preceded the storm, in this section, was the fact that hundreds of thousands of gulls flew into the harbor and its connecting bayous for several days prior to that event.

Making Artificial Ice
It is said the first commercial factory for making ice was established in New Orleans in 1866. The process was not wholly satisfactory and in 1870 there were only three other plants in operation. Later improvements resulted in a rapid growth of the business.

AMUSEMENTS
Mae Murray, scintillating diamond of the screen, glitters once more—but with a flash of genius shining out thru the gorgeousness of her exotic role, in "Valencia" her new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer vehicle now playing at the Met theater.
It is a different Mae Murray from she who charmed millions in "The Merry Widow," or caused them to gasp in amazement in "Fascination" and in others of her colorful roles.
She is the same gorgeous creature; the same dazzling beauty in wonderful gowns—but underneath it she discloses the fire of dramatic art that might grace a Bernhardt or a Duse. Mae Murray is beautiful, but what is more important, when given the proper vehicle she is one of the greatest actresses of the screen.
Just as she caused gasps of amazement in "The Merry Widow," so she creates a new illusion in "Valencia." It is a vivid Spanish story of love and romance, peril and hazard, told with the brilliant sweep of Dimitri Buchowetzki's remarkable direction. The Russian director was it his best in the new play, an original story by himself gleaned from his enormous knowledge of Europe and its romances of real life.
Richly Staged and Cast.
Gorgeously staged and cast, the story abounds in such impressive scenes as the great courtyard scene where the governor of Barcelona arrives in pomp and pageantry; the kaleidoscopic garden fete in the palace at Barcelona, and other remarkable incidents to one of the sweetest love stories ever told on the screen.
Lloyd Hughes plays the hero, and is an ideal foil for the star, and Roy D'Arcy, who played the crown prince in "The Merry Widow" proves as good a villain as ever in the role of the evil governor, while Max Barwyn, as his sinister satellite, has a remarkable character to portray that he enacts with the skill of long experience on the Shakespearean stage.

Faithfulness
Give us a man, young or old, high or low, on whom we know we can thoroughly depend—who will stand firm when others fail—the friend faithful and true, the adviser honest and fearless, the adversary just and chivalrous; in such an one there is a fragment of the Rock of Ages.—Dean Stanley.

Another Boom
A new needle-finding button is said to save the worker's time by encouraging the needle to slide easily into the thread holes. The underside of the button is molded in such a way that wide-mouthed channels guide the needle towards the holes.—London Tit-Bits.

The C. A. C. basketball management has succeeded in arranging another basketball classic for the fans by booking Moeller Pets of Delaware, for Thursday night's basketball game.

Don't you remember how those boys fought teeth and toe nail every inch of the route. Can't you just picture in your mind that old score board with first one team and than the other one for two points in the lead. And oh boy, what a thrill when the final gong sounded leaving the home boys one point to the good. Why of course that was the game that ended with the C. A. C., on the long end of a 41 to 40 score.
Now listen "buddy" Thursday's game is sure to be a repeater of that first game. Moeller is going to have his Pets all het up to drub the club crowd, and you know them boys ain't going to let 'em put anything over on them and it's sure goin' to be some fight. say "Kid" I am going to be there and you can bet your life on that. Better get things set and go along with me and see the fun.

WILL CONGRESS PLEASE---?

The Congress now sitting must adjourn willy-nilly on March 4. There is not much time for action; there are many subjects which at any time may provoke interminable debate; there is a coming presidential campaign to be considered; but

If congress wishes to return home on March 4 with the gratitude of American business, this magazine suggests that Congress: Renew the charters of Federal Reserve Banks and broaden the powers of the national banks to make them more nearly equal to those of state banks.

Reduce the corporation income tax and repeal the inheritance and war excise taxes.

Place the foreign representatives of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce on a definite and permanent status.

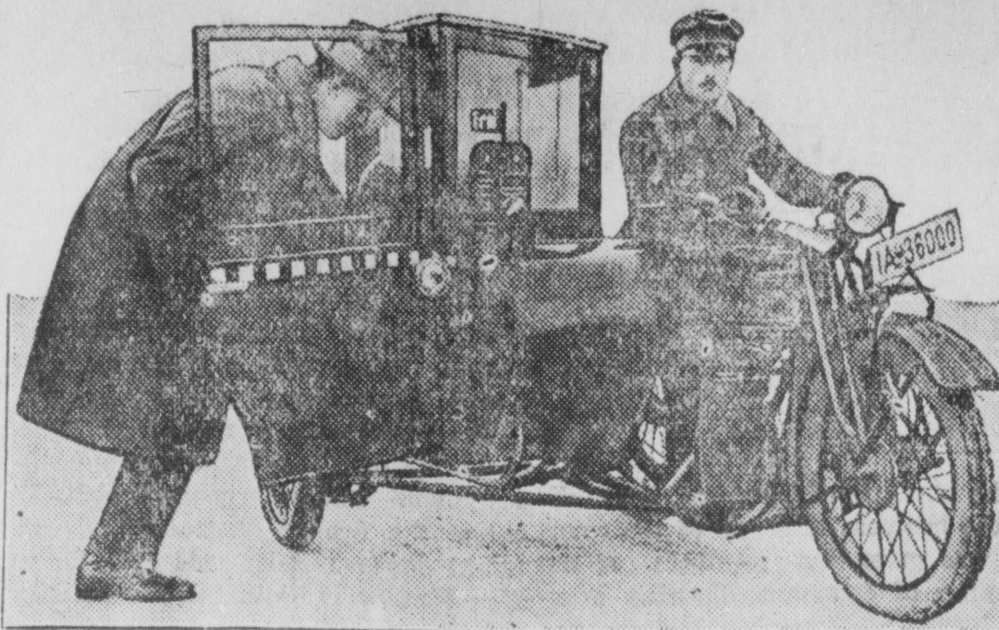

Ratify the Turkish Treaty. Revise postal-rate legislation. Settle American and German war claims and the return of alien property.

Change earlier legislation to facilitate railroad consolidation. Remove restrictions that threaten termination of parcel-post convention with Cuba.—Nation's Business.

ONE-MAN TAXI CONVENIENCE IN BERLIN

The Americans invented the one-armed lunch room chair but they left it to the Europeans to invent the one-man taxi, shown in the above photograph. Hundreds of these diminutive machines are to be seen scurrying around the streets of Paris and Berlin. The one shown above is of the Berlin variety and although considerable dignity is lost when one attempts to enter the machine, they can be quite snug and comfy when one is seated in the small interior.

PUT BEST TIRES ON REAR WHEELS

Spare Shoe Also Should Have Its Turn Off Duty, Says Expert.

A question that is asked very often by motorists has to do with the placing of tires to receive the greatest mileage and service from them. There is some little difference of opinion among tire users as to whether the two best tires should be placed on the front wheels or on the rear. One group claims that the best tires should be placed on the front, to eliminate or minimize the danger of losing control of the car in case of a blowout while traveling at a high rate of speed.

Danger Negligible.

Experience, gained by driving millions of tire miles under observation by tire men, proves that the danger from this source is negligible and is in every case the fault of the driver in losing his head.

Efficient operation of a car requires good traction, and for this reason the best tires should be on the rear wheels. The tires that are more worn should be on the front wheels.

In the case of a new or practically new spare tire, this should be used in the following manner: At the end of several thousand miles of driving examine the rear tires and select the one that shows the most wear and remove it, replacing it with the spare. Repeat this operation.

Placing New Tires.

On new cars where usually there are five new tires, they may remain in the original positions until several thousand miles have elapsed, then the front tires should be put on the rear wheels and vice versa. The fifth new tire should have its regular turn on the car.

Motor Spring Facts for More Comfort in Riding

Discussing automobile springs and their value for comfort in driving, in the Journal of the Society of Automotive Engineers, F. C. Mock, research engineer, calls attention to an erroneous belief which must be discarded in the interest of better riding conditions. "This is the impression that interleaf friction can be a satisfactory means of taking up spring action. More than 60 pounds of friction per spring in cars weighing from 2,500 to 3,500 pounds will result in noticeably stiffer riding," says Mr. Mock. "The greatest improvement in riding comfort that can be made with reasonable expense on the average privately owned car today is to grease the springs well, put on spring covers and automatic lubricators to maintain this condition and then fit shock absorbers which resist spring recoil, but do not make the springs stiffer on the bumps."

Information as to how American travelers can arrange to take their cars with them into the various countries of Europe and adjacent Mediterranean areas without being subject to tedious customs formalities is detailed in a Department of Commerce publication.

Generally speaking, the bulletin explains, automobiles may be taken for a limited time into most of these countries for touring purposes free of duty by making a cash deposit (to be refunded later) or by giving bond (to be canceled later) for the amount of import duties, or by using the trip-tique privilege.

Motor Enamel Improves Appearance of Old Car

When overhauling the motor try scraping all the oily dirt off the outside surfaces, thoroughly clean with gasoline and after drying paint it with motor enamel. This enamel can be obtained in either aluminum or black and will decidedly improve the appearance of an old motor, says the American Automobile Digest. Then, if the valve covers and all places that ordinarily leak oil are kept tightly fastened on, dust will not collect so easily, and the usually neglected dirty job of making many small adjustments will be a pleasure.

Ten Timely Safety Tips for Motorists

Ten timely anti-accident suggestions are contained in a bulletin issued by the National Safety Council, which credits Charles A. Harnett, New York state commissioner of motor vehicles, with the following:

1. Look out for children. You can never tell what they'll do, and you're always in wrong if you hit one.
2. Don't pass a standing trolley car. Some day the jury may call it manslaughter.
3. Don't speed around corners for it's a straight route to the hospital.
4. Drive on the right side of the road; it's the only safe side.
5. The fact that you had the right of way won't bring anybody back to life—least of all yourself. Use discretion.
6. Do not stop short without giving warning. The other fellow is no mind reader.
7. Do not back up without looking to the rear.
8. Do not park or pass on curve or hill. There's plenty of straight road.
9. Slow down when approaching a crossroad; it is nearly as dangerous as a railroad crossing.
10. Be courteous to other drivers and traffic officers. Courtesy prevents accidents.

Transmission Bands Are Quite Easy to Assemble

Transmission bands with a detachable ear can be more readily assembled with some kind of tool which will pull and guide the bands around the transmission drums. Such a tool can be made as shown in the drawing. A piece of steel phonograph spring, about three feet long, was annealed, drilled and slotted at one end with a file, so that it could be attached to the projecting studs on the band. One end was bent back and riveted. The opposite end was fitted with a file handle, which was done by sawing the handle lengthwise and riveting the spring to it. In use, the threading tool is inserted from the left side of the transmission. It is pushed around the drum, and the transmission band is hooked into the elongated slots and pulled down through the transmission. The tool should be made so that the natural curve of the spring will conform to the drum.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

AUTOMOBILE HINTS

Once in a while a hit-and-run motorist is charged with an error. The police get him.

One desirable form of disarmament would be to take his motor away from the reckless driver.

It takes organization to get your rights. Forty pedestrians in a close bunch can stop any darned driver.

Speed maniacs represent a danger to life and property which no peace conference can hope to eliminate.

A windshield cleaner is an appropriate Christmas gift for a motorist, suggests the National Safety Council.

Motorists shouldn't tow children on sleds which may be struck by automobiles approaching from the rear, warns the National Safety Council.

Soldier a Good Risk

Under favorable conditions of peace the mortality among soldiers is the lowest in any class of men, says the New York Times, the death rate being only 5 in 1,000. The placid days of a clergyman's life, compared with that of a soldier, are full of danger; for, proportionately, more than twice as many clergymen die in the course of the year, their rate of mortality being 11 to the 1,000.

Blood in Human Body

Experiments have shown that the total blood volume of a series of healthy men averaged 4.9 per cent, or approximately one-twentieth of the body weight. There were individual variations of from 4.2 per cent to 5.9 per cent.

STEVENSON'S

DEATH RATE

From Alcoholism Increased 23 Per Cent In 1926.

MEXICAN INDIANS FLEET OF FOOT

Tarahumares Excel Other Aborigines in Covering Long Distances.

New York, Feb. 1.—The highest death rate from alcoholism for any year since 1917 was recorded in 1926 among the more than seventeen million Industrial policyholders of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, according to the company's Statistical Bureau. The 1926 rate shows an increase of 23 per cent over 1925 standing at 3.7 per 100,000 as against 3.0 for the preceding year. The rate registered in 1917 was 4.9 per 100,000.

The actual number of deaths from alcoholism for 1926 among the lives studied was 638, or 153 more than 1925, when a total of 485 deaths was recorded. Last year's alcoholism death rate is more than six times as high as that for 1920, which, in turn, was the lowest ever recorded; it is two and one-half times as high as the rate for 1919, and more than twice as high as that for 1918. In the "pre-war" years—1911 to 1916—the highest rates recorded were 5.3 and 5.2 per 100,000 in 1912 and 1913 respectively; and the lowest were 4.0 and 4.1 in 1911 and 1915 respectively.

The inference to be drawn from the figures is thus summed up in the Statistical Bulletin.

"It is thus obvious that despite the persistent rise in the alcoholism death rate since 1920, the mortality has not yet reached the figures in evidence in "pre-war" years, although the 1926 figure is more than double that for 1918, which antedated the inauguration of National Prohibition by two years. It is clear, therefore, that unless the current trend in the alcoholism death rate is checked within the next two years, 1927 will record a figure in excess of those for two of the "pre-war" years; while 1928 will register as high a rate as has been recorded for any year since 1911, the earliest for which data are available for the industrial population."

Causeless Suicide

Fearing he had consumption, a Chelmsford (England) man threw paraffin oil over himself and tried to set his clothing alight. His wife prevented him. He then walked across some fields and jumped into the river. At the inquest a verdict of suicide during temporary insanity was returned. A doctor said the man's fears were groundless.

Women Also Fleet of Foot.

"The women also are swift runners and running matches between young women and young men are held at frequent intervals, especially in the fall, in the light of the bright October moon. These races sometimes extend over a period of three or four days and are attended by several thousand Indians. The total number of Tarahumares is about 35,000 and, despite the hard life they lead, they are the strongest and most vigorous people I have ever known.

"I have witnessed many of their big racing events and the spectacle is worth going many miles to see. That is especially true at night, when the pine knots are lighted to mark the path of the runners and the flare of campfires upon the mountain sides lends a weirdness to the scene that is somewhat awesome. Besides the straight-away race, there are races which are handicapped in certain ways. One favorite handicap is for the runner to kick a ball along the path as he runs, and the women keep the ball moving by striking it with sticks.

Live on Wild Game.

"Notwithstanding the proved physical powers of the Tarahumares, they do little in the way of real work. Some farming—just enough to raise corn and beans for their own use—is carried on, but most of their living comes from the wild game that they kill. These Indians are one of the few native tribes that have not been Mexicanized. Not many of them speak Spanish and most of them resent the intrusion of aliens. I am glad to say I was made a notable exception to that rule.

"They are honest, good-natured, fun-loving folk. The men do not wear beards, because they believe the devil has a beard. To keep their faces beardless, the men pluck out the hairs when they first begin to appear and they keep this up all through life.

"I witnessed an incident at Guazapares not long ago which convinced me that the bobbed-hair style will never be adopted by the Tarahumare young women. It was while on a trade pilgrimage to Chihuahua that a young girl of the tribe saw that bobbed hair was the fashion. She induced a friend to clip her hair.

Bobbed-Haired Girl in Disgrace.

"When she got back home and her parents saw her shorn locks, they declared she was in disgrace. The head men of the tribe held a conference and were about to sentence her to a life of banishment in the mountains, which meant that she would have to take shelter with some poor Mexican family or die of starvation.

"It happened, however, that one of the Indians insisted that I be made a party to the conference, so I was sent for. I heard the case and then I suggested that they should not carry out the severe sentence which they had proposed, but that they permit the girl to remain in her parents' home until her tresses had grown to normal length, when she would have atoned for the disgrace she had brought upon herself and the tribe. This was done.

"One of the remarkable beliefs of the Tarahumares is that stones and all other inanimate objects really possess life and that they suffer joy and pain just the same as human beings. By reason of this belief they have great reverence for stones, plants and trees. They worship a species of cactus which lives several months after it has been pulled from the ground. The root of this cactus contains a juice which the Indians drink and which has a powerful narcotic effect.

Never Look in Mirror.

"No Tarahumare maiden or male member of the tribe has ever looked voluntarily into a mirror or any other reflector that might show to them their features. It is one of the solid superstitions of these Indians that to catch even a fleeting glimpse of their reflected features, even in a pool of water, is bad luck. Notwithstanding the existence of this taboo, the Tarahumare young women are possessed or more than ordinary maidenly vanity. They primp and dress to attract the attention of the young men, and yet they never have any idea of what their personal appearance is like.

"The women do the courting, and it is one of the most amusing processes toward marriage that perhaps exists anywhere in the world. Both young men and women are extremely bashful. When a girl sets her heart on a certain youth for her husband she has a terrible hard time mustering up courage to "pop the question." Sometimes it takes months of patient and amusing tactics before she gets the young man to understand that she is in love with him. When the eventual question is finally asked and she is accepted, that is all there is to it. There is no marriage ceremony.

Medicine Man Important.

"The Tarahumares live in the heart of the greatest country of wild game to be found anywhere outside of Africa. I truly believe. Deer, bears, antelope, wild turkeys and various other kinds of game abound. The needs of the Indians are few. They wear little if any clothing and their homes are usually made of reeds and limbs of trees.

"In each village is a medicine man, who plays no small part in the daily affairs of his people, especially in times of sickness or trouble. The medicine man is supposed to possess an overabundant supply of what we would call ideas; at any rate, he usually keeps a cloth tightly wound around his head to "keep his mind from escaping."

Turkeys Turn Wild and Stay in Woods

St. Charles, Mo.—Martin Cleary, an extensive turkey raiser of this city, has had the odd experience of seeing a brood of about ten domestic turkeys go wild on him and so far he has been unable to corral them. They have secreted themselves somewhere in the woods in the rear of his place and he has been unable to get within gun or any other range of them. The turkey hen, when she hatched them, kept the brood out of sight until they were good-sized birds and then went out into the woods with them.

MADE RECORD RIDE TO MOUNTAIN TOP

Two white men and two Indians recently rode saddle horses to the summit of Squaw mountain, that peak of the Rocky mountains lying nearest Glacier Park hotel.

Hikers have for years made the summit of this mountain at an elevation of 7,320 feet, but never before has a horse been taken over it.

Crow Feathers and Cut Finger, Blackfoot Indians, accompanied by Ernest K. Gann and Harlow Giesele, two St. Paul young men, accomplished this difficult feat. Realizing the importance of this accomplishment the Glacier Park Hotel company has taken up with the park superintendent the proposition of having a horse trail laid out along the route discovered by the Indians.

Crow Feathers says that a view from this peak reveals the grazing ground of mountain sheep and goats upon the wall of rock forming the edge of the Great Bowl. The horse trail follows an old footpath but turns aside before it hits the peak.

Ancient Church Organ

Frederick Miller, an expert on organ history, says that the oldest pipe organ in America is in an Episcopal church at Clyde, N. Y. It was built for Queen Anne of England and presented by her to Trinity church in New York, which eventually passed it along to the congregation in Clyde. It is a genuine antique, with only 110 pipes and no pedals.

Brush Up

You'll agree that this, that or the other girl has a "mean hair in her head," when your wife finds it on your coat.

Got Back at Critic

An actor, who had been persistently ridiculed by a newspaper dramatic critic, met the critic at a social function. "Do you read my criticisms?" the writer ventured to ask. "Yes," replied the actor. "You see I am a late riser, and when I buy my paper yours is usually the one left on the news stand."

SELL NEARER HOME ADVICE TO BEEKEEPERS

Wholesale Market Fails as Honey Distributor—Amateurs Encouraged

Beekeepers as well as other Ohio farmers, have a marketing problem. One solution is for the beekeeper to steer clear of wholesale markets. Professor L. F. Phillips of Cornell university told members of the Ohio Beekeepers' association meeting at Farmers' week in Columbus under the auspices of the Ohio State university. "Honey markets are at present in a deplorable condition," Prof. Phillips said, "due partly to general economic conditions, but also due to the failure of beekeepers to bring the virtues of honey to the attention of potential consumers."

"There has been a growing and unfortunate tendency to depend on whole sale markets for the distribution of the honey crop. The wholesale markets are in so poorly developed a state that unless absolutely necessary, perhaps because of distance from the consumer they should not be the sole distributors of honey."

"Honey really has no competitor," the speaker continued, "but by placing it so largely in wholesale markets, beekeepers have placed it in direct competition with cane sugar and many cheap and often inferior sweets which flood the markets."

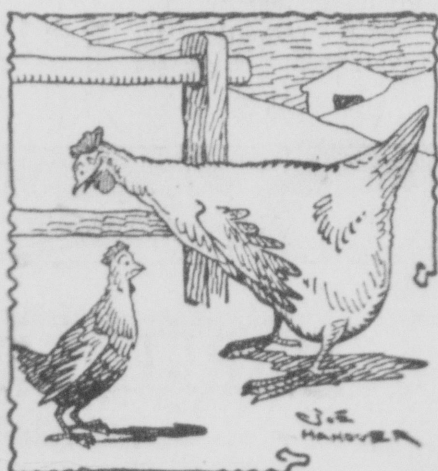

Amateurs in beekeeping ought to be encouraged, Professor Phillips said in another address at Farmers' week. Amateur beekeepers, like those encouraged abroad, "are the best promoters of the use of honey that can be imagined."

DETERMINED

A man intent on emigrating stopped before a news agent's shop and read a placard: "Situation in the East." He strode eagerly into the shop. "I've come for that situation you're advertising," he said. "Pooh! That's on the state of affairs—" began the new agent, but the other interrupted: "I don't care whose estate it's on. I'll take it."—Tit-Bits.

CHIC

Mrs. Bantam (in her new feathers)—How do you like my new dress? Mrs. Buff-Orpington—Quite chic.

A Guess

"Wonder why folks call money 'The long green'?" queries Drew. Perhaps because without it We all feel short and blue.

Could Do That Much

"It's a shame you don't know anything about cooking," the young husband informed his bride after the honeymoon. "Everybody ought to know how to cook. Why, I learned how myself in the army."

"Oh, well, I can warm a few beans, if that's what you mean."

Talk Softly

"Pa," said Clarence, "what's this 'double jeopardy' I see mentioned so often in the papers lately mean anyway?"

"That, son, is what a man is up against when he is getting orders from both his wife and his mother-in-law," whispered his dad.

His Preference

"Why do you prefer going to gym instead of to this party with me?" demanded his wife.

"Because," he growled, "if I have to spend the evening with a lot of dumbbells, I much prefer spending it with the kind that don't chatter."

MAGIC HOUSE STILL RIDDLE TO ARCHITECTS

Riding Academy at Moscow Has No Braces or Beams For the Roof.

Russia's "house of cards" still holds its secret.

The magic construction of the old Imperial Riding academy's roof at Moscow, which doesn't have a beam, brace or pillar, has again baffled inquisitive architects and engineers who tried to find out how it was put together.

The roof of this huge old building apparently is carefully built up of small pieces of wood, each not more than one square foot in size, fitted and woven together to make a pliant, unsupported roof of great size and strength which has successfully withstood the weight of scores of Russian snowstorms and which still shows no sign of deterioration.

No Beams, Braces or Supports.

From the tankard floor of the great riding hall to the undersurface of the slightly, flexible roof, no beams, no braces, no supports of any kind, break the fine line of the building's interior. It is the only construction of its kind. It was built long ago by a clever Russian engineer who died without divulging the secret of interlocking the small pieces of wood which make the roof.

Now once again architects have examined the construction in an effort to discover the magic combination, but they have learned nothing. They cannot even discover where the key-stone lies, the last block inserted by the artful builder years ago which holds the entire surface together, nor can they learn the exact shape of the separate pieces.

They dare not cut into the roof to take out one of the bits of wood for examination lest the removal of a single piece should cause the entire roof to slide and tumble down like a house of cards.

The building is now used as a garage for government automobiles, but it will again be used as a riding shed and stable, as it is feared the vibration of automobiles may injure the roof.—Baltimore Sun.

DEATH CLAIMS J. W. VALENTINE OF THIS CITY

John Walters Valentine died at the home of his parents in Circleville township on the Northridge road Wednesday morning, at 7:45 o'clock.

The deceased had been ill for nearly five years of Bright's disease. Besides the family physician, Dr. H. C. Allen, a specialist in Bright's disease, Dr. J. H. Upham of Columbus, was called to treat the patient.

The deceased was the only son of Edward and Maggie D. Walters Valentine. He was born in Circleville township August 24, 1887. Mr. Valentine was a young man of quiet mien and a person with an unassuming character. He had hosts of friends, who will be shocked to learn of his death.

The deceased was a member of the local lodge of Elks, the Knights of Pythias and religiously was a member of the Lutheran church.

The funeral services will be held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home of his parents. Rev. G. J. Troutman will officiate. Interment will be in Forest cemetery.
